TEA: Talking Elder Abuse art competition

To mark World Elder Abuse Awareness Day, the NSW EAHRU has developed TEA: Talking Elder Abuse art competition. Help raise awareness of elder abuse and the Helpline's work by participating!

Dedicate time with your colleagues, friends and teammates to Talk Elder Abuse whilst creating a work of art. It's via these conversations that pathways to awareness and prevention are conceived.

Get involved!

Entry is open to members of any community groups, registered groups, incorporated associations and NSW state government agencies.

Working with your team members, create imaginative works of art using tea and tea paraphernalia (tags, bags, tea packaging, etc.) then post a still image of the finished artwork to the Helpline's Facebook or Twitter page. The choice of subject matter is entirely yours, and there are great prizes to be won!

Here are two of the artworks created in 2015.

Full terms and conditions and entry forms are available via the Helpline's website, Facebook and Twitter pages or email eahru@chcs.com.au
